PERMANENT MAKEUP

Permanent makeup is a cosmetic technique which employs tattoos (permanent pigmentation of the dermis) as a means of producing designs that resemble makeup, such as eyelining and other permanent enhancing colors to the skin of the face, lips, and eyelids.

Achieving perfect eyeliner can be tricky. It all comes down to precision, a long-wearing eyeliner, and a lot of luck honestly. Enter: eyeliner tattoos. Eyeliner tattoos (also known as permanent eyeliner) have been around for decades, and specialists for this treatment have perfected their makeup tattooing technique for natural-looking

PERMANENT LIPS

A form of semi-permanent makeup. Essentially, it is a cosmetic tattoo of the lips that enhances the beauty of the natural lip color, improving the shape of the lips, giving definition and the illusion of fullness

A form of tattooing (also known as micropigmentation). People who have lost their eyebrows due to alopecia (a form of hair loss) may choose to have "eyebrows" tattooed on, while people with vitiligo (a lack of pigmentation in areas of the skin) may try tattooing to help camouflage the condition.

When extensions first hit the mainstream market, it seemed like a relatively painless way to achieve wispy, fluttering lashes without the inconvenience of falsies or mascara.

Tinting defines and shapes to enhance your natural brows.

Manual microblading is a process that involves tiny, fine-point needles (instead of a tattoo gun) that make up a small disposable blade and handle (picture a very small tool that looks like a rat-tail comb) to scratch and deposit pigment simultaneously under your skin. The result? Realistic-looking brow hairs that don't
